: 82 Civ. 4259 (RWS)

: SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWERS OF
: DEFENDANT, NINTENDO OF
: AMERICA, INC., TO PLAINTIFF'S
: FIRST INTERROGATORIES AND
: FIRST REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION
: OF DOCUMENTS

Defendant Nintendo of America, Inc. hereby provides supplemental answers to the first set of interrogatories and first request for production of documents of the plaintiff, Universal City Studios, Inc., as follows:

Interrogatory No. 3

Identify the persons responsible for (a) developing and (b) marketing, selling and promoting in the United States the game DONKEY KONG. If defendants have documents which describe or narrate the circumstances which led to the development and subsequent marketing of DONKEY KONG, please give a description of the documents and state where they are located.

Supplemental Answer to Interrogatory No. 3

Documents that refer or relate to the development of Donkey Kong were produced to counsel for Universal City Studios, Inc. on January 10, 1983 including:

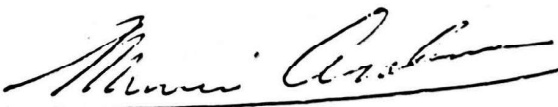

- (1) Three volumes of Mr. Miyamoto's sketches and notes accumulated during the developmental process;

- (2) Excerpts from Mr. Miyamoto's business diary;
- (3) Mr. Miyamoto's draft specifications for Ikegami Company;
- (4) Ikegami's technical specifications with Mr. Miyamoto's notes thereon;
- (5) Mr. Miyamoto's response to Ikegami's technical specifications;
- (6) Ikegami's response to Mr. Miyamoto;
- (7) Mr. Miyamoto's technical memorandum to Ugi factory;
- (8) Mr. Todorii's list of proposed names;
- (9) Two telexes sent by Mr. Yamada;
- (10) Japanese-English dictionary pages used by Mr. Todorii in naming Donkey Kong; and
- (11) Three trademark searches conducted by Mr. Hongo in May, 1981.

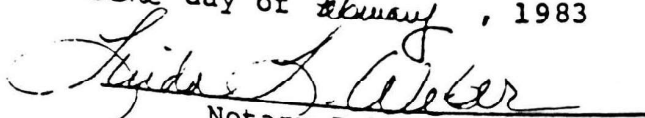

A picture of the planned scenario of the game using Popeye characters had been previously provided to counsel for Universal City Studios. The date of this picture is on or about March 21, 1981.

The foregoing supplemental answer is true and correct to the best of my information and belief.
